Residents greet spring in sun hats, ponchos and their individual trends

The fashionable in Harrisburg welcomed spring on a recent afternoon by bringing color to Second Street.

Courtney Bullock, 35, of Susquehanna Twp., was wearing a pink Ralph Lauren T-shirt paired with a beige Stetson Herringbone hat and red sunglasses. He called himself a "history buff," and it showed through his bracelets, which have engravings of the Tree of Life and the Eye of Horus.

Bullock said his look is meant to be "colorful" and "so fresh that [it's as if] I haven't been born yet."

Chantal Fae stood out in a patterned dress and Coach clutch purse. The 26-year-old Harrisburg resident is an "avid thrifter" who said she gets most of her clothes at JM's Thrift & Vintage at 1124 N. Third St. in the city. She bought her purse for $10 at a thrift store, and said it's one of the few branded items she owns.

"[My style is] funky colorful grandma," she said. "I like colorful statement pieces that I'll pair with calm pieces."

Fae was joined by Andre Nelson, who wore a soft-blue dress shirt over a salmon shirt paired with jeans. The 24-year-old downtown Harrisburg resident also buys most of his clothes from thrift stores. Nelson said he doesn't know if he has a style, but he enjoys "looking different."

MOTHER'S DAY 2016

Forget flowers – make the day more meaningful

StatePoint

Gifts and flowers are a nice way to show Mom you care on Mother's Day, May 8. But this year, consider adding deeper meaning to the holiday with these ideas:

Volunteer together

After breakfast in bed is wrapped up, spend the day working side by side with your mom on a local volunteer project. Whether you take advantage of the spring weather and participate in a park cleanup or you serve lunch at a local soup kitchen, you and your mom will enjoy quality time together, while also feeling good about helping the community.

Gifts that give back

You could forego a tangible gift altogether and instead make a donation in your mom's name to charity.

Here's one worthy cause: There are 153 million orphans worldwide, according to UNICEF, many of whom lack basics such as food, water, education and medical care.

"In honor of Mother's Day, consider paying tribute to your mother by helping provide a mom to those who don't have one," says Caroline Boudreaux, founder of The Miracle Foundation, a nonprofit that improves the way orphanages are run, funded and managed.

The international charity is raising money to pay the annual salaries and room and board of housemothers working in orphanages in India. Each housemother acts as a mom to 20 orphaned children in her care, creating a nurturing environment where they can thrive.

To honor your own mother or another special woman in your life, consider visiting miraclefoundation.org/mothers to learn more about the campaign and to make a tax-deductible donation.

Use Your Talent

COOKING UP GIFTS FOR MOM'S KITCHEN

Family Features

From homemade childhood favorites that warm the heart to delectable desserts, no one works their magic in the kitchen quite like Mom. When trying to decide what to get your favorite lady for Mother's Day, look for gifts that allow her to channel her inner foodie, chef or baker.

MORE IDEAS

» For other gift ideas that help support the fight against breast cancer, visit www.KitchenAid.com and CookfortheCure.KitchenAid.com.

The best gifts are always those that keep on giving. Through Cook for the Cure, a 15-year partnership between KitchenAid and Susan G. Komen, more than $10.7 million has been raised for the fight against breast cancer.

In 2016, KitchenAid will donate at least $450,000 to Komen through the program, regardless of sales. The Cook for the Cure product collection, ranging from pink stand mixers and polka-dot bowls to pink food choppers, painted plates and hand mixers, is an easy way to give thanks to Mom and raise awareness for a cause that benefits so many women.

HANDY LITTLE HELPER

▲ Whether you need to blend a milkshake or puree cooked vegetables, this hand blender in pink gets the job done. Two speeds provide blending control for more delicate foods, such as smoothies and baby food. The blending arm twists off for quick and easy cleanup. Comes with a 3-cup BPA-free jar with lid, so Mom can blend away, safely. $59.99
